1. The Rotscherlinde (N 53/2 32) airfield was unoccupied and no aircraft landed at the field on 9 and 12 October 1950. About 12 wrecked Soviet aircraft were in a small woods near the southeastern corner of the field; two others were seen on the landing field. A small guard detail of the Soviet Air Force was stationed in a farmhouse in Rotscherlinde. A field cable ran from there along the southern edge of the field to Krahne (N 53/2 22), where it connected with the public line. The Rotscherlinde-Krahne field way was blocked. *

Comment. the Rotscherlinde airfield was unoccupied. According to available information the installation is apparently used only as a training field for air-to-ground firing by the fighter regiment stationed in Brandenburg-Briest. The guard detail stationed in Rotscherlinde seems to be stationed there only for this purpose. The presence of wrecked aircraft is confirmed.
